Population growth shifting out of Salt Lake to Utah County

The Associated Press | Posted Mar 27th, 2016 @ 8:40pm

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — New census numbers indicate that the epicenter of Utah's population growth is shifting from the state's capital to the booming Utah County just to the south, where tech jobs are helping to draw new residents.

According to U.S. Census Bureau data, Utah County and Salt Lake County are merging into one metropolitan area. Between 2014 and 2015, the Salt Lake and Utah counties each added about the same number of new residents — 14,426 in Salt Lake and 13,671 in Utah — despite Salt Lake being more than twice the size.
